

Abstract of the Disclosure

Systems, methods, and devices are provided for scoring assertions in software testing. One method embodiment includes registering assertions which fail during testing of software code. The method includes analyzing failed 5 assertions against a set of questions. The failed assertions are scored based on analyzing the failed assertions against a set of questions.